

PolyColumbus Mission Statement

last updated April 11, 2014

PolyColumbus empowers individuals that either self-identify as polyamorous, open, or ethically non-monogamous, or are exploring such possibilities. We build community to provide a safe and inclusive place to not only be ourselves, but also meet like-minded individuals from all backgrounds. We advocate for the equal treatment of the ethically non-monogamous under law, and for broader societal acceptance of the same. We serve organizations with similar goals by documenting best practices and creating other resources for successfully running such an organization. Finally, we educate each other, allied organizations, and the broader community on what it means to be ethically non-monogamous.

PolyColumbus Policy License

for Mission Statement

The core of the PolyColumbus Mission is empowering individuals that either self-identify as polyamorous, open, or ethically non-monogamous, or are exploring such possibilities. Part of this empowerment comes from serving organizations with similar goals by documenting best practices and creating other resources for successfully running such an organization.

Good policies facilitate the orderly and sustainable growth of communities and events that advance the PolyColumbus Mission, whether in the Columbus, Ohio area or elsewhere.

PolyColumbus does not claim a monopoly on wisdom. What we do claim is fifteen years (and counting) as an organization, and leadership with relevant and valuable education, experience, and training. We have confidence in the policies we draft, as well as the humility to revise them when necessary in light of experience.

Under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution license, PolyColumbus hereby grants to any and all the rights to use, distribute, adapt, or modify the above-named policy, even for commercial purposes. The key requirement for this license is attribution, which means providing credit to PolyColumbus, indicating if you have made any changes to what we have provided, and not doing anything that would suggest PolyColumbus endorses you or your use.

More details are available at <http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>.

Please contact our board of directors at board@polycolumbus.org with any questions or comments on using our policies.

